Atrion Networking Corporation Acquires Shazamm

Warwick, RI – May 21, 2008 - Atrion Networking Corporation announces today it has acquired interactive multimedia company, Shazamm, allowing it to offer customized technical and aesthetic client business solutions.

Shazamm specializes in detailed Web, print and multi-media communications and marketing solutions, with Web application designs and technologies being its signature trademark. Also a customized, client-focused company, Shazamm's culture and methodologies are parallel to Atrion's, and make the merger of the two companies, although they are in two different arenas of information technology, a perfect fit.

With the acquisition of Shazamm, Atrion will now be able to offer its clients not only behind-the-scenes services such as Unified Communications, Network Security and Managed Services, but also outward-facing services such as functional and attentive website and communications capabilities.

"Atrion is ecstatic to be able to provide such diversity and comprehensive business solutions to its clients," says Tim Hebert, President and CEO of Atrion. "With Shazamm as our artistic arm, Atrion's clients will be able to innovate their company literally from the inside out. And all from one trusted and certified industry partner."

"There's such an exciting synergy between Shazamm and Atrion," says Shazamm CEO Dana Paul. "The opportunity to be part of a larger company, expand and develop our service offerings – and having the ability to offer Atrion's services to our clients – is incredible. Tim is an amazing leader and I'm looking forward to growing the company with him. Everyone at Shazamm is excited about the next chapter of our history."

The completion of the acquisition will provide Atrion's currently 490 clients with multimedia opportunities including Z-One – which empowers users to remotely manage and monitor content on kiosks and digital signs, and Z-Media – a Web-based asset management platform. With offices in Providence, RI and New York City, Atrion will be able to more proficiently serve its regional client base.
